

THE MUSTARD SEED

Annual Pie Auction
February 15, 2026

Pastor's Corner

Let me express my thanks to all those whose labors have gone into the making of a successful chili supper for CFMC and for our guests. Peggy Landgraf, who chaired the event, and the rest of her team of volunteers are to be commended for pulling off the event in the onset of such cold weather! Thanks, as well, go to all those who donated for the menu and the baked goods that were so well received.

Coming into the season of Lent, amidst the brutal cold, I am mindful of Jesus's forty days of wandering in the desert. Lent is traditionally seen as a cycle of self-denial, of course. Our friends in other places, for example, give up meat on Fridays for this season. Still others use it as a time to impose self-discipline, giving up chocolate or a favorite beverage for the duration. Those can be terrific reminders of the power of self-denial, no doubt.

As I watch the news and listen to what is happening in the broadest sense, I wonder if we might approach this period as ones empowered and tasked with the difficult work of healing and restoration in our community and world. Self-denial, it seems to me, is—beyond the lack of Diet Coke—a willingness to listen to others, perhaps even at the expense of holding back a bit on what we think when it contradicts another's point of view. No one, I suppose, could miss that disagreeableness and argumentativeness seem to plague our public discourse.

What can be done to restore, or at least foster, a willingness to hear “the other” with whom we walk and work? Scoring points amidst a rhetorical dialogue might be a good thing for a high school debater, but is it the best way to keep or gain an open channel with a neighbor? This is not to say we must simply swallow our words and remain silent. Quite the contrary! It is rather to suggest that paths of communication impel us to listen as much as we speak in times of challenge and fear.

For those who suggest that this idea has nothing to do with following Jesus, I would submit that Jesus's earthly ministry of self-denial and His prophetic voice on behalf of those whom society had marginalized, is precisely the model we are called to open in pursuit of dialogue, especially for those with whom we find ourselves in profound disagreement.

Open your hearts. Let the Spirit of God come and fill you with the capacity to listen and learn, share and grow, and know that even when we disagree, it is God's purposes and aims, not those of earthly powers, that we are to proclaim.

With great hope,
Pastor Dave

Moravian Day of Giving

Who:

Everyone who feels called to make a difference. Congregations, agencies, and individual Moravians across the continent take part, each adding their own spark of generosity to this shared effort.

What:

The Moravian Day of Giving is an annual celebration of generosity and our wider Moravian community. It brings us together to support congregations, ministries, and the Field of Interest Funds that provide grants for work in hunger relief, housing, health, creation care, racial equity, prison ministry, and clothing support.

In 2026, the day features two special initiatives designed to expand the impact of every gift:

- A participation challenge in which six churches or organizations with the highest number of individual donors will receive $2,026 dollars.
- Matching support for each Field of Interest Fund, doubling gifts up to $2,026 per fund.

These initiatives encourage broad participation and help ensure that ministries across the Moravian Church continue to thrive.

Where:

All you have to do is give at least a $10.00 donation through the CFMC online portal on February 17. You can get there through our website (www.cfmoravian.org) and click on the green donate box in the upper right hand corner of the home page. Share this with your family & friends so they can consider donating to our church. This is more than a fundraiser, it's a movement. Together, we can make a profound difference in communities in need, strengthen vital ministries, and celebrate our shared faith, love, and hope.

Lent

Exploring past issues of The Moravian Magazine reveals valuable reflections. This month, they focused on Lent-themed editions from 1969 and 1976, below are a couple of insights.

Lent is the clearing away of the cobwebs which our faith somehow manages to accumulate. It is a re-examination of our relationship with Jesus Christ and a renewing of our commitment to him. It is our hearts being touched again by the great love of God as he gave his Son to die for our sins. Our penitent hearts can be made strong with this love and we are then better able to do the will of God in this world.

The Christian should make this reexamination and renewal all year. From this comes compassion and love for Jesus Christ and our fellow man.

This compassion, this love, can manifest itself in concern for those around us. Then perhaps the alleviation of poverty, racism and unrest will begin to show more rapid progress...."

—Joyce Pharo, March 1969

...The observance of Lent in the church seems always to have been preceded with the question: "What shall I give up for Lent?" This concept has come down from antiquity and made Lent known as a forty-day fasting season.

In some churches (and the Moravian Church may be one) the observance of this season has not been overemphasized, if indeed it was emphasized at all. Perhaps our observance of Lent was withdrawn in an effort to break away from tradition for tradition's sake.

Now we realize that there are traditions that offer much in meaning and in the building of unity. So we look at Lent and observe it as a memorial time: a time to remember Jesus setting his face and his meditations toward Jerusalem.

We realize that this means not only the crucifixion of that Friday, but it means also the open tomb of resurrection morning. Of the victory over death. And of the grace expressed in 'Where I am, there ye may be also.'

Lent then is not only a time of sacrifice, but a time when we observe the holiness of the resurrection. Then we will look at Lent as a season when we begin to do what we were created to do..."

—C. Albert Ulrich, March 1969

Wednesdays in Lent

Our initial gathering will take place on Wednesday, February 25. We plan to come together for fellowship over a shared meal starting at 6:00 PM.

After our meal, Pastor Dave will guide us in a discussion about “Where we’ve been, Where we are at, and Where we are going.”

Meals will be organized on a weekly basis, and a complete schedule will be provided soon. In the meantime, please mark these Wednesday gatherings on your calendar so we can engage in informative discussions.
